TRANSPARENT ENAMELLED PAINTINGS
ON GLASS, &c.

THE Proprietors of this Eshibition respectfully acquaint the Nobility and Ladies and Gentlemen of Edinauran, that it is now open for public inspection at the Exhibition Rooms, on the first stair, over Mess. Ruddiman, Bookfellers, on the South Bridge, and will continue on view every day (Sandays excepted) from ten o'clock till Three in the evening.

man, Bookfellers, on the South Bridge, and will continue on view every day (Sandays excepted) from ten o'clock till Three in the evening.

These extraordinary Productions of human art extend to almost every effect incident to nature: That very capital piece representing the inside of a Gothick Chareb, with the effect of San after a shower, esteemed Mr Jervais's chief d'Oeuvre, is in the Collection. To Mr Jervais's works are added four Transparent Paintings by that eminent artist Mr De Lautherbourg, F. R. A.—To conclude with a display of the extraordinary Optical Properties of

The Royal Accurate Delineator.

In forming this Collection, the Proprietors have withheld no expense: they have been particularly careful to felect such a variety of Mr Jervais's Cabinet Pieces, as should convey a perfect idea of his unrivalled abilities in this most delightful art. The Exhibition has been presented in the principal parts of England, and in London repeatedly; it has in consequence been subject to the inspection of the first judges of works of art, whose sanctional morning recreation, therefore, the Proprietors are encouraged to introduce it to the favours and patronage of the Ladies and Gentlemen of this metropolis, in which an affection for the elegant arts so much abounds, and in order to afford them an opportunity to renew their visits, as well as to render the Exhibition accessible to the public at large, the terms of admission are sized at—One Smilling each person.

More ample particulars will be expected in the explanatory Bills which will be duly circulated.

REVOLUTION IN FRANCE.

THURSDAY, Nov. 26.

There is little other news than what paffes in the National Affiembly. The proceedings here, with the trial of the Baron de Befenyal, engages all the public attention. The latter refts his whole defence on the orders he received from his inperiors.

The National Affembly continued their proceedings yetlerday on the articles of the Conflithtion, in regard to the future conduct of the municipal power, which are principally as follow:

"Those citizens who on the first ferutiny shall have the first ferutiny shall be selected. If on the first ferming a majority, shall be elected. If on the first ferutiny a fufficient number be not returned, a fecond shall take place for the choice of Members of the numici-

"Mayors shall be elected only when they have a decided majority of votes; in case of an equality of votes, the elder of the two shall be prefered.

Relations cannot be eligible as members of the fame municipal body.

"The members for municipal bodies of cities, towns, &c. shall be limited to three, including the Mayor, where the inhabitants amount to 3000. To nine, where they exceed 10,000.

To twelve, when amounting to 25,000. To eighteen, from 50 to 100,000. 'And To twenty-one, where they exceed that num-with an exception of the City of Paris alone which, on account of its immedie population, thall be governed by fuch particular regulations which thall be conformable to the principles and organization of the other municipalities.

"There shall be in each municipality an attorney for the community, who shall have a deliberate voice, and be charged with the management of the affairs of the community.

"He shall be nominated by a plurality of voices. In cities containing ro,000 fouls, a fublitute fence of the principal.

"The attorney of the community, and his deputy for the time being, shall take an oath to discharge their duties faithfully.

"The members of the Municipal Administration shall continue two years in office, half to be re-elected every year."

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Constanting Le, Nov. 18.

To a fearcity of provisions we have now to join a fearcity of money, which begins to prevail in the Ottoman empire. Government, it feems, cannot conceal from the Public the enormous expence cauconceal from the Public the enormous expense cau-field by the prefent war; as, in confequence of a re-foliation taken by the Porte, his Highners has order-ed a new recoinage of piastres to take place, with a diminution of half their intrinsic value; so that that piece of money will, we are affured, containfeareely two thirds in filver, and rather better than one third in copper, by which operation the Porte thinks to gain from fitteen to twenty millions. This inconvenience is the more to be feared, as it has been conftantly found, that, as often as the piaftres have been tecoined, their value has diminished below the stanrecoined, their value has diminished below the standard fixed by Government. The Turks understanding nothing of this branch of national occonomy, the inspectors, and those employed in the mint, are the only persons who enrich themselves. It is true, that the Court, by strangling those who have been guilty of mal-administration in that point, lose nothing; but the nation and the trade suffer greatly. Those who pretend to be well informed say, that the Porte has only made this speculation to pain as per cent, on only made this speculation to gain 2, per cent on the whole sum of the subsidy which she is engaged to pay Sweden. This conjecture, if true, is no great proof of the considence and altrict union which are hid to jublist between the two powers."

Since our laft, nothing effential has transpired. The mails from Holland arrive now; but all the newf-papers are stopped in their way, and not suffered to come forward; and all private letters coming by the polt are inspected; and, if they are found to contain any thing respecting the present troubles, they will not tet them pais. We are thus deprived of the best source of intelligence for a while.

All that has transpired since last post is, that the Patriot army being apprized of the intended march have torn up the pavement between Bruffels and Ghent, and rendered the roads almost impassable by cutting down-trees, &c. and placing them in chequiax de frieze, acrois, &c. to impede the progress foil the Emperor's troops. General Vandermus has the domi-mand of the Patriots; and, having been flighted by the Emperor, he embraces the opportunity of retalia-tion with the most fanguine ardour. He is an excellent and approved commander; and, it is every where expected, that a very bloody contell will enfue at Bruffels.

The foldiers who were round at Ghent, are driven about like wild beatts by the Patriots, who will not suffer them to remain in any part of Brabant. On Tuesday last, advice was received at the Hotel de Ville here, that fome foreign troops were on their march, and orders were given not to admit them in to Life. At two o'clock they preferred themselves, to the amount of above four hundred, at the Porte des Mahdes; and upon being refused entrance they proceeded towards Douay. They proved to be a part of the regiment de Piersey, and were quite unarmed. Several Frenchmen amongst them, who had deferted into the Emperor's Tervice, availed them-felves of a late proclamation to pardon description under certain circumfances, and furrendered at the Corps de Garde, where they were immediately enhitted into the regiments in garrison. At mulnight, the guard at the Porte de la Barre was accepted by another troop of these wretched wanderers to the n which were a number of women and children.

They entreated permillion to enter, declaring them felves to be in great diffrels for want of previsions. The Bourgeois militia, then upon duty, being touch ed with their fituation, with great humanity repaired immediately to the Commandant's house, to requelt leave for these strangers to pass through the city; permission was granted, and the gates being opened to admit them, they were conducted by a detachment of foldiers to the Porte des Malades, where, by or-der of the Commandant, they were all refreshed with provisions, and proceeded on their march to a place at the extremity of the Emperor's dominions, cighty-nine leagues from hence, where they are to take re-

REVOLUTION IN AUSTRIAN FLANDERS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27.

On Wednesday a battalion of Imperial troops marched from Louvain to Dielt (about fifteen miles atunder;) to rout a body of Patriots that were affem-

On the approach of the regulars, the Patriots marched out to meet them, and having faluted the town, drew up in battle-array, and gave fuch a warm reception to the Imperialists, as to oblige them to a precipitate retreat, with the loss of many killed and wounded. General Vandermerchen was at the head of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the Patriotic array, which was well as a support of the patriotic array which is the patriotic array which is the patriotic array and the patriotic array are patriotic array and the patriotic array are patriotic array as a support of the patriotic array are patriotic array and the patriotic array are patriotic array are patriotic array are patriotic array and the patriotic array are patriotic array are patriotic array and the patriotic array are patri of the Potriotic army, which was well appointed with artillery, and every other effential. So great was the fame of this overthrow, and fo much was it exaggerated, that although every thing was quiet at Mous, the capital of Hainault, and a was quiet at Mous, the capital of Hainault, and a firong garrifon there under the command of a general officer, yet to univerfal a panic feized the whole, that they left the place and fled to Bruffels: Being fewerely reprimanded by General Dalton, they were ordered to return. In their abtence, the fuperb chateau of Count Darhberg was levelled to the ground by the populace; and the Count, now apprehensive of his houle here meeting a fimilar treatment, has advertised it to fale, either with or without the firming the property of the country o vertifed it to fale, either with or without the formidemanded his dimilion from the fervice. The whole of his estates lie in this country, which, should the Patriots be successful, will most probably be conficated:

The importunitles of the merchants of Offend, in-fipired by the folicitudes of commercial probity, to preferve from the hazard of a pillage the toreign pro-perty in their warehouses, obtained from their Gowernor the peaceable departure of the garrison.

The Imperial Arms were every where supplanted by those of the Province. The States of Flanders refolve to arm and embody a corps of 15,000 men, for the support of the cause of Beigic liberty.

The capture of Ghent has thrown a great damp on the Imperialite, and has confiderably weakened the Emperor's caute. Perhaps there is no infrance in modern history of so dreadful a carnage as took place in the attack of this city. The returns of killed and wounded prove far greater than were at first known, and moderate people reckon them at 3000 men; other accounts say 12,000. One hundred and twenty capital houses were burnt to the ground, or otherwise destroyed. Since the town has the Patriots, they have promifed to indemnify the in-habitants for all their loffes. How far their finances will hold good to fulfil this promife; is another matwill hold good to ruint this promite; is ranother mat-ter; but at prefent they have abundance of money, and pay for every thing punctually.—They have offer-ed rewards of thirty guildres for every primer ta-ken, and three for every gun taken from the enemy. As foon as things were a little fettled, the inhabitance all took an eath of allegiance to their new matters.

The condition on which the garrifon of the citadel of Ghent were admitted to capitulation; was their parole of honour not to ferve under the Emperor in the Low Countries.

The Patriots, unappalled by the rapid approaches The Patriots, unappalled by the rapid approaches of winter, are preparing for the most vigorous measures. They have garrifoned Ghent, Bruges, Courtral, and Oitend. One part of their army, under M. Maillebois, is detached towards Mons; and the province of Hainault will be an easy prey. Another portion, under the young Prince de Ligne, is now stationard at Alost. Eleven thousand men, commanded by General Vandermerch, have advanced even to the Best of Source, a frest within seven miles of Brussley. Bois de Sogue, a foreit within feven miles of Bruffels. A party of their light cavalry was yesterday seen at Etterberk, a village within half a league of the Porte Etterberk, a village within half a league of the Porte de Namar. A very strong detachment, headed by the Count de la Marok, passed by the frontiers of Liege on the 21st, to the attack of Namur and Louvain. The investment of Brussels, the grand object of the Patriotic system, is formed by the re-anion of all these separate bodies, when they shall have atchieved their subordinate conquests. The blustering and gatespading of the Government has nowhere could. The afpect of Bruffels is awful and melancholy, Chevas de Frise terminate every firee, and every thing feems to indicate, that Dalton, though the gates should be forced, or a breach made in the walls, is resolute to contest every inch of ground, even in the city, with the victorious Patriots.

The contraft of this Refolution, with the paternal goodness announced in the Imperial Edict, illustrates admirably the Character of Joseph II.

At Louvain, on the 18th, a report that the Patriotic army was at hand, covered the streets with an exulting multitude. Their complaint against the Emperor, he under-stands, is on account of his having taken the riches flands, is on account of his having taken the riches from their churches to carry on the war against the Turks. This they deem a great infringement of their religious rites, and take the advantage of the war to redreis them, as nearly the whole of the Emperor's army is, at this time, engaged against the Torks, and he has very unadvisedly left his own dominions in a defenceless state. The Emperor, it is thought, is in his heart a Protestant; and is endeavouring, by degrees, to do away the present superlicious mode of worship; so that it may be termed a religious war. ligious war.

The Patriots of Bruffels, in establishing a corps of riflemen, consisting of 1000 determined troops, strike effectually at the annihilation of Joseph's greatness:—riflemen are of some standing on the continent, and, sike those of America, their system has ever been to pick and extirpate!

Farther advices from Flanders state, that the Patriors were met at Courtray by the Magistrate and chief inhabitants, with the greatest pomp and joy, and conducted into the town in procession. In the above town of Courtray, they have 600 men ready to facrifice their lives in the cause of their country.

The same Patriots have received the heartiest thanks of the Ghenters, their allies, to whom they ascribe the taking of St Peter's barracks.

They write from Ghent, dated the 21st of November, that certain news is received of the town of Tournay having joined the Committee of the Netherlands, and that every person has taken the oath of sidelity to their country; after which, the arms of their late Sovereign were taken down, and those of the State put up in their stead.

The movements of the Prussian troops have conflantly kept the Court of Austria glancing on them with a sufficiency eye, and considering them only as doubtful neighbours. If a rupture should now take place, men and money will be a-wanting; both of which are, at this time, scarce commodities with the Emperor.—Brabant was looked upon as a resource for either; and that being gone, it would require the utmost exertions even to act on the defensive; nor could that easily be done, without immediately recalling some of their troops who are acting against the Turks, and so being obliged to rescind all those advantages which they have been able to obtain this campaign.

By letters from Vicona, by the Dutch mail arrived on Monday, and dated November, 14. we have advice, that the fiege of Orfova commenced the 3d, and the Turkith Governor and gerrifou had made a politive refolution to defend the place to the laft. It is confirmed, that a large body of Turks are aftembled in Boinia, and threaten Croatia with invation. The last advices from Vienna say, that the Emperor, informed of the extremities to which the spirit of liberty is likely to carry the people of the Low Countries, has sent instructions to the Governor of Brussels, to place every thing on its ancient footing, to restore to the Brabanters their constitution which had been abolished, to re-establish the State Assemblies, &c.

Our letters from Conftantinople advise, that the Porte has rejected, with marks of the most sovereign contempt, the terms of peace proposed by the Imperial Crowns. The Emperor's troubles in Brabant are not unknown at the Ottoman Court; and upon these they naturally found the hopes of better prospects another campaign.

Bruffels is sufficiently fortified against musquetry; but it might, by a spirited cannonade, be reduced in a very few hours. For some months path, it has been the direction given by the Government to the military power, wherever rive persons were affembled, no matter how trivial their business was, to take them into custody. Their churches were always crowded with the military, who took great care that the congregation should not have it in their power to turn their thoughts from devotion, to talk on political subjects.

We have by Monday's post received a letter from Paris, dated the 27th, in which is the following passage:

"The publication of Mons. Mounier's apology, the triumph of Saturday, the air of satisfaction that appears among all the aristocratics, the incredible should of libels, which all of a sudden overwhelmed us, the torrent of injurious reports that are clandestinely spread about against the desenders of our liberty, and many other circumstances, warn us to be on our guard. That some plot was hatching, and near bursting from its shell, is certain from the following circumstance:

"A letter from an Abbe of Lorraine, dated the 16th, and directed to his agent at Paris, was stopped at the Post-office, and has the following passage:—

"Keep on your guard, particularly on the 25th; things are in a good train; we have more friends than you imagine; on the 25th—I repeat; and be affured, I will not recompense you by halves;—

The representatives of the community of Paris, in imitation of the National Assembly, have facrificed their silver buckles. The fraternity of pick-pockets, with their usual ingenuity and alertness, have availed themselves of this general surrender of buckles, to stop people in the streets, and oblige them by threats or, force to give the buckles out of their shoes, on present of collecting them for the good of the public.—An order was issued from the Hotel de Ville on Thirsday last, to apprehend all persons guilty of such practices, and carry them instandy before the Commissioner of the Chatelet.

The first part of the pension list, containing twenty-four quarto pages, is sublished. The plan of the work is, to divide the whole into seven parts; the first to contain, in alphabetical order, the names of all those who enjoy pensions of 20,000 livres and upwards, with the age of the pensioner, the date of the pension, and the reasons for which it was given; the second, from 8,000; and 60 on.

The result of the first part, which is said to be very incorrect, is, that 86 persons share among them annually 2,895,623 livres. Of these, ten are ladies; 15 superannuated or discarded Ministers; 26 persons, whose seven heard of; and 30, for whose seven and tents 10,000 livres would be a liberal reward. The reasons most commonly assend for granting these pensions are, to make good a pension no longer paid by some foreign Prince, or to reward political services.

Marthal Broglio enjoys four several pensions, making together 70,000 livres.

The finance of France owes much to the Comte D'Artois; the large buckles of his Highness's invention have contributed amazingly to the support of the state.

EDINBURGH.

This day, his Majetty's Proclamation, appointing Parliament to meet for the dispatch of business, on Thursday the aist of January next, was read at the Cross with the usual formalities.

This day, Lord Frederick Campbell took his seat in the Court of Session as Lord Clerk Register, dreffed in his robes of office.

Thursday evening, Sir Thomas Dundas of Kerse, Bart, arrived in town from his seat of Kerse.

The Concert here was opened last night, to a very elegant and brillians company, among others, the Duke of Montague, Dutchess of Buccleugh, and two daughters, Lady Sydney and Lady Louisa Kerse, Lady Betty Cuninghame, Lady Clerk, Mrs Macrae, &c. &c. The band was excellent—Stabilini, Schretky, &c. and three singers, Urbani, Signior Monti, and our old acquaintance Mrs Stewart, much improved, and now a very capital singer.

Wednesday morning, betwixt two and three of clock, a cantore, or small counting-room in the brewery of Mr John Cundell brewer in Leith, was broke into, and cash to the amount of about ten pounds Sterling, stole from the desk. It is suspected this house-breaking and thest was committed by one of the servants belonging to Mr Cundell, who has since absconded.

On Saturday laft, a woman coming to Cumbernauld was attacked by a ram, and, before any person came to her relief, was so much brussed on the breast and head, that, notwithstanding the affistance of a surgeon, she expired in a few hours. Wednesday one of the masons working on the top of the new building at the back of the Tontine, Glasgow, owing to the breaking of a stone which he was listing, fell backwards to the bottom of the building. When taken up, both his legs were broke. He died next morning.

Thursday, in consequence of information from England, one Wright was taken up at Glasgow, for forging a bill. While under examination the bill was shown him, which he acknowledged to be his, but instantly tore it in pieces.

Last week died, at Galiton, Marion Gibson, aged roo. About ten years ago she received a set of new teeth, and her eye-sight was so clear, that she could read the smallest print. She walked to Irvine, which is thirteen miles from her place of residence, and returned next day. She span upon the rock without turned next day. She span upon the rock without the use of speciacles, and continued very straight.— She was full in body, and died in sour days confine-

A large Manks boat, with two oars, lashed down, was cast on shore the 15th ust. about three miles to the southward of St Bee's Head; she has since been brought into Whitehaven harbour.

Thursday selemnight, in clearing the ground for the foundation of a house, in the Friarage of Lancaster, several human bones were found about three feet below the surface; and, beneath these, nears, a thousand silver coins, mostly of Edward Pirst and Second, some of the Henrys, and a few of Alexander's, king of Scotland. They are about the fize of a sixpence, thin, and weigh from twopence to threepene eeach; appear to have been wrapped in slamel, and are in good prefervation. The workmen have since sound some skulls and other bones, from which, is is conjectured, the place has been a burying ground.

A correspondent observes, that the company attending the debate, in the Pantheon, last Thursday evening, was uncommonly brilliant. The question regarded the affections of the fair fex, which attracted great numbers to hear the discussion. Several excellent freeches, were delivered, and maftion regarded the affections of the fair fex, which attracted great numbers to hear the discussion. Several excellent speeches were delivered, and many observes, answers, and replies, repliet with wit and good sense, were made, which, while they afforded instruction, gave rise, at the same time, to much mirth and harmony. The presence of the Ladies secured challity of language, and they had the happiness of hearing immoral propensities exposed, there effects delineated, beauty directed to its proper use, and the cause of virtue and ment warmly especially.

A correspondent observes, if the Magistrates would brider the foot pavement, on the end of the North Bridge, next to the Playhouse, to be relaid in a proper manner, it would be of great advantage, as, from its present stanting situation, it is very dangerous to walk upon in frosty or wer weather. The opposite side also needs a little repair on the pavement. In consequence of the order of the Privy Council, mentioned in our last; the merchants in Bristol have send large orders to America for wheat, whete the crop has been the greatest ever known.

The following bounties are granted in France, on the importation of grain, &c. whether from Europe of America, to commence the rst of December, 1789, and continue in force till the rst of July, 1790.

DUNKELD, Nov. 2, 1789.

The Prefbytery of Dunkeld at their meeting yesterday, took under confideration the proposal of renewing the buildings of the University of Edinburgh; and defirous of testifying their regard to 6 eminent a feat of learning, unanimously reloved to contribute as a body to the building of the New College; and in confequence of this resolution, a subscription paper was figned by all the members present.

Dublin, Nov. 28.

Yesterday, in the Court of King's Bench, the arguments of Counsel were heard on behalf of Mr John Magee, to shew cause for a mitigation of the bail for 4000. I. demanded by the Court, on a Fiar issued formed time since by Lord Chief Justice Clomell, on the application of Richard Daly, Efg. Manager of Crowstreet Theatre, on which Mr Magee had been true.

twice committed to priion, and held to bail for that furn.

Mr Magee's Counfel, on this occasion, were Mr Browne of the College, Mr. M. C. Walker, Mr R. Sheridan, Mr Hecket, and Mr Guinness, who acquirted thensielves in a manner highly honourably to the cause of found law, justice, and the constitution.

In the course of the pleadings, they denied altogether the legality of Fiats; and the Court was so forcibly struck with the strength of their arguments, that they would not decide upon the question till mext term.—They agreed, however, to take, instead of bail for the 4000 l. demanded—the small bail of 500 l. offered; and admitted the acceptance even of this small surety, should not be any prejudice to the arguments of Council, nor be considered as a decision that any bail was necessary.

Amongst the other modest and moderate candidates for Fiats against Mr Magee—came recently—" the last not least in savour, —George Joseph Browne, Esq; Barrifer at Law, before a learned and revered Baron, claiming one of those Law Bulls of indulgine life only 8000 l. !! 4—The answer in this affair was not very flattering to the claimant. It was, that the learned Baron would not then question the validity of an action on the case; nor bestate to grant the plaintiff a Fiat for 40 l. or 50 l.—and surther, that if a jury would find a verdict for him in the Court where his Lordship presided, he should not feruple to award him 10 l. damages.

DUEL.

Saturday, in confequence of a private dispute on board the Neptune, Capt. Gilbert, the commander of that ship, attended by his second, Mr Nelson of Plythat thip, attended by his fecond, Mr Nelfon of Plymouth-dock, met, by appointment, Lieut. M'Arthur of the Rotany Bay Rangers, with his fecond; the Surgeon's Mate of the Neptune, at the Old Gun Wharf, near the Lines. The diltance of ten paces being measured, both gentlemen fired their pittols together. Lieut. M'Arthur's ball passed through Capt. Gibert's coat. They then fired a second pittol each, without effect; when the seconds interposed, and the business was settled, by Lieut. M'Arthur's declaring Capt. Gilbert's conduct was in every respect that of a gentleman and a man of honour. In the evening, gentleman and a man of honour. In the evening, Lieutenant M'Arthur declared the fame on the quar-ter-deck of the Neptune, to the fatisfaction of all parties.

It is faid the quarrel originated on a refufal of Capt. Gilbert to admit Lieut. M'Arthur into his own private mels; at the fame time, he offered him every accommodation for himself and his family the ship would allow. This brought on some dispute, which occasioned very high words; but we are happy the duel ended without bloodshed.
